

V For Victory — Name Is MacArthur

This baby, born in an Elizabeth, N. J., hospital during a blackout was found to have a vivid "V" for victory birthmark on its forehead. But the oddity was further heightened when it was learned that the infant's name was MacArthur. The mother, Mrs. Angela MacArthur, holds her victory baby.

Berlin Announces That 35
More Hostages Have Been Shot

(By Associated Press)
VICHY, April 17.—The United States ambassador to Vichy, Admiral William D. Leahy, was instructed today to return to Washington for consultation as the present Vichy government moved aside for the assumption of power by Pierre Laval.

Vice Premier Admiral Darlan and other ministers submitted their resignations en masse to Chief of State Marshal Petain but at the old marshal's request, Darlan, his political heir-designate, became commander in chief of land, sea and air forces.

35 More Hostages Shot

Coinciding with these developments in the grave situation was a German announcement that 35 more hostages had been shot in occupied France in reprisal for attacks on the forces of occupation.

President Roosevelt ordered Leahy to return immediately. Acting Secretary Welles told his press conference, because of events of the last few days, and Laval's emergency.

However, Mrs. Leahy is convalescing from an operation and their actual trip home will be deferred until she can travel, Welles said.

His counselor of the United States embassy in Vichy will be left in charge there.

In answer to questions, Welles said the United States had rejected yesterday's communication from Vichy because it was a communication which had been submitted to and received the approval of German authorities in France before it was sent.

Vichy's Rejection
This communication was the Vichy government's angry rejection of an American note explaining establishment of a United States consulate general in Free French-controlled equatorial Africa, and restating in broad terms the policy of the United States toward France and the French people.

BEAT MOTION

Naval Committee Refuses
To Suspend Action On Profits, Labor Measure

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The house naval committee refused by a nine to nine vote today to suspend action for a month on legislation to limit war profits and regulate labor in war industries.

Fep. Flaherty (D-Mass.), indicating he thought the committee would reject the legislation offered by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.), offered the motion, saying:

"We're all aware of the possibility of executive action on all phases of this legislation.

"Negotiations to that end now are going on and rejection of this bill might have a bad effect on those deliberations."

Rep. Shannon (D-Mo.), protesting that only 30 printed copies of the Vinson bill were available, said it seemed an attempt was being made to "sneak it through" and argued that copies should be widely circulated over the nation before the committee took any action.

"When you've got issues to meet, meet them," demanded Vinson. "Let's not dodge them, let's have a showdown."

In the meantime the house judiciary committee opened hearings on a new proposal to subject labor unions to prosecution under the anti-trust law and to prevent them from forcing employers to hire "unnecessary" workers.

Gen. MacArthur Is Absolute
Boss In Southwest Pacific

Any Question To Contrary Disputed By Secretary
Stimson; Australians, Dutch Cooperate

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Secretary Stimson said today that General Douglas MacArthur was in complete charge of the "strategic direction" of the United Nations' war effort in the southwest Pacific and the "practical coordination" of the campaign in that area to defeat the Japanese invaders.

The war secretary told his press conference that General MacArthur's authority had been fully agreed to by the Australians and the Dutch and the agreement embodied in a formal directive signed April 3.

Stimson said he was "frankly surprised" at statements credited to MacArthur's spokesman in Australia that MacArthur's authority had not been fully defined.

He termed "a tempest in a teapot" what he described as a flurry resulting from the statement.

"From the very beginning, when the President authorized General MacArthur's transfer from the Philippines to Australia, there had never been a moment's question that he would have the over-all strategic command in that area," Stimson said.

"The Australians and the Dutch have been warmly cooperative from the beginning, but there have been details to work out," he added.

Stimson said General MacArthur had the same type of command as exercised previously by Britain's General Sir Archibald Wavell in the southwest Pacific and had the same general powers in the area as granted in another area in 1918 to Marshal Foch.

Stimson said whether New Zealand was included in MacArthur's command was a "military secret."

SHELVE POLITICS.
IS HOOK'S ADVICE

Armed Chief Advises Government
To Match Civilian and Industrial Cooperation

CINCINNATI, April 17.—Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Co., urged government last night to put its house in order to match industrial and civilian cooperation in the war effort.

Hook, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told the Open Hearth Committee of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers:

"We have the right to insist that partisan politics be placed in cold storage for the duration, and in this I am not recommending that we abandon the two-party system. I refer particularly to that brand of politics which preaches class cleavage, stimulates dissension, and interferes with production."

"While the government has every right to expect complete cooperation of industry, citizens may properly require that government adjust its affairs so it, too, may make the greatest contribution to swift victory."

Hook reported that in the past two years, the steel industry's capacity was increased by 6,500,000 tons annually, or about "the equivalent to the total steel making capacity of Japan."

War Officials Say Troops
On Bataan Peninsula
Are Unreported

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The war department announced today that more than 65,000 troops and civilians including 16 generals, had been unreported for more than a week on Bataan peninsula and were "presumably in the hands of the enemy."

This figure included approximately 35,000 combat troops, about 5,500 sick and wounded, a number of supply and other non-combatant troops and some 25,000 civilians, a communique reported.

No reports of casualties in the last few days of fighting on Bataan have been received, the communique said, but it was believed likely that losses were heavy on both sides.

Nurses on Corregidor

There were 68 army nurses on Bataan, and all of them were evacuated to Corregidor island on April 9 along with a relatively small number of troops, the communique said.

Secretary of War Stimson was asked at his press conference whether the war department had information on Japanese treatment of prisoners. He replied:

"I have no convincing information that they are not following the Geneva convention in the Philippines, and as for us we are going to do that as long as events make it possible."

The state matches all relief expenditures on a 50-50 basis.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Secretary Stimson said today that "so far as the army is concerned we are getting pretty near to the stage of being ready for an offensive, however difficult it may be."

In a review of American military progress since Pearl Harbor, given in general terms at his press conference, Stimson said:

"Things are beginning to move and to move in the right direction."

"At Earliest Practicable Moment"

"I am now more than ever convinced that we are going to get on the offensive and to do so at the earliest practicable moment," he added.

He stressed, however, that preparations for offensive warfare in a conflict which involved the entire globe was a long and difficult process.

"Before we can lead this nation into a long sustained offensive we must be as well as possible, that certain key points of our armor are as safe as possible," the war secretary said.

Makes Sure of Resources

"We must make sure that our resources and manufactures are protected against any interruption which would hold up or damage our offense."

"And when it is a world war with powerful enemies attacking us all around the globe, our key points of defense run far out into distant quarters of the world where some friendly nation is holding a post that is vital to us. That is what we have been trying to do during these difficult months and the task is not yet finished."

Stimson described the morale of the American fighting forces as "superb."

RAIL SALVAGING
MAY BE EXTENDED

S. Broadway, Franklin and S. Ellsworth Work Finished; Metal Is Sold to Bliss Company

The city's WPA rail salvaging project may continue on several additional streets where the old Y. & O. street car rails are imbedded, the city engineer's office indicated today.

Removal of the rails from S. Broadway, Franklin st. and S. Ellsworth ave. below Franklin has been completed, netting a total of 47 tons of metal. The E. W. Bliss Co. contracted for the purchase of the rails at a ceiling price of $22 a ton.

The sale brought the city $1,034 and provided the Bliss Co. with a high grade steel for defense manufacture.

City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff indicated that plans are being considered for the lifting of the old street car rails on several additional streets while the WPA project is in force. Twenty-three men were employed in the task of salvaging the metal to date.

The bricks were relaid on S. Ellsworth ave. and asphalt sealing is to be applied in a few days, if the weather is favorable, the engineer said.

SCRAP PILE GROWS
IN COUNTY'S DRIVE

Over 500 tons of scrap metal have already been collected in the rural "Scrap for Cash" campaign in Columbiana county, according to Floyd Lower, Lisbon, chairman of the scrap committee.

Collection work is still under way in several townships. The total collected will probably amount to 700 to 800 tons when completed. Most of the collection work has been done by the township county and state trucks with the help of local salvage committees.

WARTIME PRESS POLICY IN AMERICA

The postmaster general's order banning the weekly publication "Social Justice" from the mails is issued under authority of the espionage act, which has been the principal declaration of wartime press policy in this country since June 15, 1917.

The main purpose of the act was to establish punishment for newspapers that wilfully made false statements interfering with the war effort, or attempted to cause trouble in the armed forces. The postal ban was secondary, a means of minimizing the influence of publications charged with violation of the act pending trial.

The espionage act is the American version of what is needed to strengthen a sense of responsibility on the part of the press during wartime. When it was passed, there was an unsuccessful attempt by certain press-baiters, always to be found in political circles, to establish censorship. It was argued that censorship, besides being distinctly contrary to the constitutional guarantee of freedom of press, wasn't needed. Experience in World War I confirmed this, and experience in World War II is confirming it again.

Responsible newspapers consider it a privilege to operate within the limits of the espionage act. They are not afraid to take responsibility for the material they publish; they never will be afraid as long as the law governing their operation is administered fairly, in a constitutional spirit. For the most part, they may be expected to feel that "Social Justice," which took the chance of skating on thin ice knowing full well what the consequences might be, has no complaint to make. It will have a chance to tell its story and should be willing to abide by whatever decision may be made.

NO MORE DEAD CATS

More than any other member of President Roosevelt's administration, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson demonstrated the possibilities of name-calling in political administration. With him it was an art, like a mule skinner's vocabulary. Spiced still further by the general's tremendous energy and the zeal he kept on tap for whatever job he happened to be doing, it gave the United States some of its colorful episodes. Personal abuse—"dead cats" was his name for slanders—flew like chaff when he was riding high as NRA chief.

When Gen. Johnson fell out with the administration, he turned his vocabulary and the convictions it helped to advertise against the New Deal and most of its works, thereby becoming an anti-administration columnist and radio personality. But with the capacity for expression he possessed, also, a capacity for thinking and acting that also were extraordinary. The general was one of the genuinely interesting personalities of the times. It is a curious fact that there are so few like him; perhaps it is because most men, confronted with chaos, react by being uncertain. The effect on Gen. Johnson was the opposite. He seemed to have convictions on everything.

AN OLD ARMY HAND

In the guessing game about Gen. MacArthur's official status, one more guess might be that an old army hand who once was chief of staff knows exactly what he is doing when he raises such a question. Gen. MacArthur has been set down on the Australian hot spot with a lot of fine publicity and mouth-filling hubbalo. What he wants, it may be taken for granted, is a lot of airplanes, transports, supplies and a chance to devise a plan of strategy to get revenge for what Japan has been doing in the Pacific.

In brief, having had much experience with the way things are done in Washington, Gen. MacArthur apparently has decided to have a showdown now, instead of waiting until the capital's second guessers can go to work on him. If he is going to be responsible for the outcome of the United Nations campaign in southwest Pacific, he wants to know exactly how much authority goes with the responsibility. It may be imagined he has seen too many scapegrats in his lifetime and in this war to want to become eligible for the role, himself.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, April 18

STARTLING, peculiar, perhaps bewildering turns of the wheel of fortune may be expected from the predominant planetary configurations. It is difficult to predict what may be the nature of certain revolutionary and far-reaching adventures, but which by and large should be favorable, stabilizing and sound even though spectacular or breathtaking. Many avenues of experience may be open, with some aspect of public affiliation or connection with political, diplomatic, fraternal or corporation bodies. Change may be sudden and surprising, and duties or obligations justly assumed may bring rich rewards. Romance is not lacking.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a year of high adventure, with sudden and dramatic turns in the tides of destiny. There may be decisive and revolutionary changes, with travel, adventure, romance or some sort of novel or unique experience to intrigue and gratify. Public affairs, or political, diplomatic or government relations may beckon and the assumption of duties or obligations may reap permanent and very real rewards. A great book or play may be written under such creative urge.

A child born on this day should have much versatility and unique scope for its unusual creative talents. A life of dramatic interest, strange experiences, but withal built upon sound principles and profound judgment is predicted.

MORE CARTED AGREEMENTS

WASHINGTON, April 17.—A justice department attorney told the senate patents committee today that an international cartel agreement between German interests and the Remington Arms company, controlled by E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and company had impeded American sales of military ammunition to England and other parts of the British empire.

Allen Doherty, special assistant to the attorney general in the anti-trust division, testified that the agreement permitted sale of ammunition to England "for shooting grouse, quail, ducks and for target practice. But Remington may not sell ammunition containing tetracene to Great Britain for the purpose of shooting Germans."

The witness explained that tetracene was a priming composition for firearms and munitions and asserted that an agreement involving the German patent on the compound produced these results:

1. Prevented sales of tetracene-primed ammunition to the British purchasing commission until recently.

2. Gave a German company access to military information through Remington Arms company royalty payments to the German company.

3. A German company may collect royalty on ammunition sold to the United States army.

Doherty's charges surprised members of the senate committee and Senators Lucas (D-Md.), La Follette (Prog-Wis) and Bone (D-Wash) asked if the agreement still was operating.

The anti-trust lawyer said counsel for Remington Arms informed him they had broken the agreement not to sell to England and other parts of the British empire in recent days.

Earlier Chairman Bone of the committee had said: "We're going to blow the lid off, if we have to, to get all industries to work winning the war."

He said that was his answer to "suggestions" that the committee drop its investigation of American tie-ups with Axis-controlled business interests. He did not identify who made the "suggestions."

ECZEMA OFTEN CAUSED BY CONTACT

Three or Four Times as Common on Women's Hands

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ECZEMA is three or four times as common on women's hands as it is on men's because women are likely to come in contact with more substances which are irritating and have the property of causing eczema.

I remember one case which puzzled me for a long time—puzzled

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is a mild word for it. She was a middle-aged woman who had eczema only on her left hand. I was pretty sure that it was a contact affair, but neither she nor I could figure out exactly what she contacted with her left hand which she would not also touch with her right hand.

I finally asked her to keep a diary of exactly everything she did, minute by minute, through every day. In a week she came back and announced that we had both been fools—which was a pretty fair statement. She found that when she watered her primroses, she held the watering can in her right hand and lifted the leaves of the plants and flowers so that water would get down into the pots with the other.

It was the left hand and the left hand only, that was exposed.

Mistaken for Ringworm

Most of these cases of dermatitis on the hands of housewives are due to some sort of contact with some object that they have to handle in housekeeping. The eruption is usually watery pimples on the back of the fingers and the hands. For some reason or other it tends to improve in warm weather and is better or worse according to the degree and frequency of exposure to irritating substances. Many of these cases are called ringworm and are unsatisfactorily treated as such.

It may be a rug with some kind of dust in it, or something used in cooking to which the housewife is sensitive. Most of the cases, however, are due to some kind of soap or the over use of soaps. Most people in the latter decades of life wash their hands too often with soap anyway, and this causes drying and defatting of the skin which leads to eczema and the invasion of bacteria into the skin. Medicated soaps may contain some substances which will produce this hypersensitive reaction.

The Patch Test

Soaps are by definition metallic salts of high fatty acid content, but for practical purposes sodium, potassium or ammonium salts are also used for cleaning purposes. Most soaps on the market also contain rosin and such things as sodium silicate in high quantities. Cooks, domestic workers, housewives, hospital orderlies, hairdressers, dish washers, bar tenders and surgeons are all subject to these eczematous eruptions. A good deal of the fault is unnecessary re-washing of the hands and a good deal of it is due to lack of sufficient rinsing of soap from the hands.

The way the dermatologist makes a diagnosis is by what is known as the patch skin test. He takes the object that the skin comes in contact with, puts some on the skin, and covers that patch of skin up with an adhesive plaster and watches to see whether an eruption takes place or not.

The treatment, once the diagnosis has been made, is obvious and in most cases very simple. One of the great features in treatment is the use of rubber gloves. For most of the people employed as we have described, rubber gloves are the solution to the condition.

Questions and Answers

J. H.: Does a vegetable or any food in a glass container lose vitamins by being exposed to light? I strain the orange juice I serve. Is it necessary to use it without straining it in order to get all the vitamins?

Answer: Light and heat both have a tendency to destroy the vitamins in fresh foods. So does simply standing at rest. Nature protected the orange with a skin which shuts out light and keeps the temperature even, and it would be well to take Nature at its word and use the fruit while it is fresh. There is a great deal of waste in pouring off water from vegetables and preserved fruits. However, orange juice in a tin container retains its vitamins very well. There is not enough loss to make very much difference.

G. A. M.: What would cause an apparently healthy person to fall asleep, almost without warning, at any time of the day? I get at least eight hours sleep at night.

Answer: The only thing that I can think of is lack of thyroid secretion.

M. F. W.: Please give a list of foods that contain vitamins B1 and B2.

Answer: Eggs, milk, whole wheat, yeast, oatmeal, apples, asparagus, bananas, beans, cabbage, cauliflower, pineapple, and prunes.

BRAZIL IS SOURCE OF RAW MATERIALS

Amazon River Valley To Be Exploited For War Materials

RIO DE JANEIRO—The Brazilian government is repeating Horace Greeley's famous saying, "Go west, young man...." as plans are pushed for exploitation of the Amazon river basin, largest virgin land in the whole world today and considered by experts as possibly the largest potential arsenal of strategic war materials.

The climax of the government's plans came during the visit to the United States of Minister of Finance Arthur de Souza Costa and his visit here of Leon Henderson, member of the U. S. Board of Supplies. Agreements already have been reached by Souza Costa in Washington, and the conferences here with Henderson are expected to lead to exploitation of the vast territory of 2,500,000 square miles, rich in native products such as rubber, mahogany, ebony, rosewood nuts, carnauba wax—a substitute for paraffin—tanning extracts, and gum.

In addition to the basin is rich in almost all materials produced in other tropical lands. Experts do not discount the possibility that the subsoil also hides a tremendous wealth in minerals, oil, coal and other products of highest importance for the democracies in their present war.

Climate Is Atrocious

Thus, the Brazilian government hopes that this may be the El Dorado sought by Spanish adventurers during the 16th and 17th centuries. It is hoped that cultivation of this land and industrialization of the remaining country, especially in the southern states, will place Brazil among the high-ranking powers.

The present population of the Amazon basin, which spreads from Colombia and Venezuela in the north to the frontiers of Paraguay in the south, and from the frontiers of Peru and Bolivia in the west to the Atlantic coast on the east, is calculated at about 2,000,000 persons—about one person for each three fifths of a square mile. Climate, jungle, and disease have been principal factors in maintaining the low standard of living in the area.

The climate the year around is a sweltering heat with much moisture. Settlements such as the principal cities and organized farms like that of the Ford Motor Company rubber plantation call for a special medical corps and large numbers of workers to clear the jungle. The government believes, however, that concentrated effort can clear the jungle rapidly, thus allowing a more bearable life for the white man.

Railroad Around Rapids

Belem and Manaus are the principal cities of the Amazon basin. Belem, capital of the state of Para at the mouth of the Amazon river, is the outlet for the basin and it is hoped that with the development of the basin it will become one of the principal export ports of South America.

Manaus, popularly termed "pearl of the Amazon," is capital of the state of Amazonas and is the principal coordination base for all efforts in the basin's development.

Transportation is easy in most parts of the basin due to the Amazon river's many tributaries, although a railroad has been constructed around the Madeira river rapids, thus permitting Bolivia an outlet to the Atlantic ocean.

A government official told the United Press that exploitation of the basin is one of the biggest enterprises ever undertaken by man. The plan calls for transforming the world's biggest jungle into one of the world's greatest production centers.

The government of the Dominican republic is rationing existing stocks of motor vehicles, tires and tubes.

Stimson announced that in recognition of the steadfastness and courage shown by the Filipinos in the defense of their native land, the army had made Filipinos eligible with American Citizens for training as aviation cadets.

Help Seal Objective
He said that the Filipinos' part in the defense of the islands seemed to seal the United States' 40-year objective to help create a nation there based on the same rules of freedom and self government as are followed here.
Commander of the Bataan force was Major General Edward P. King, Jr., whose name topped a list of 16 American and Filipino general officers who were believed to have been captured.

General King took command as senior officer when Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright, commander-in-chief of the Philippine defenses, shifted his attention to the defense of Corregidor fortress.

Major General Albert N. Jones commanded the southern wing of the forces defending Luzon in the December stage of the struggle, and was decorated subsequently along with General Wainwright by General Douglas MacArthur.

SOLUTION TO BOMB PROBLEM IS SEEN

Special Liquid Is Turned Over to Allies By U. S. Chemist

LOS ANGELES—A liquid that may rob the incendiary bomb of its menace by "flameproofing" buildings and articles of clothing was recently turned over to the United Nations by a Los Angeles chemist.

Recent tests conducted in the suburbs of Los Angeles indicate that the new substance, deoxolin, effectively flameproofs and also extinguishes fires attacking clothing, wooden roofs, gasoline tanks and metal objects.

The inventor, Dr. O. T. Hedenfield, a native of Norway, declined to discuss his discovery until recently, when it was found that the deoxolin formula cannot be broken down successfully by enemies of the democracies.

Dr. Hedenfield announced that the liquid is now being manufactured in large scale quantities and initial shipments have been made to Allied army and navy posts. He said the formula for deoxolin was given to the government of the United Nations "under certain conditions that preclude commercialization by civilians."

Extinguishes Bomb Fire
Fire-fighting experts who witnessed the recent experimental tests of deoxolin concluded that the liquid is the first reliable method of controlling the type which caused such extensive damage in London.

As a demonstration, Dr. Hedenfield threw a few handfuls of "deoxolinized" sawdust on a carpet. Magnesium shavings and thermite powder were ignited, creating a heat of 3,500 degrees F., and raked onto the treated sawdust. Half an hour later the "bomb" had melted and was extinguished gradually by the action of the deoxolin—and the carpet was not even damaged.

A man dressed in a deoxolin-treated overall suit emerged unscathed from a fire made of burning straw, and a metal box—made of the type of materials that go into a modern warplane—was not even charred by burning oil after it was treated with the new substance.

Dr. Hedenfield said any burning area sprayed with deoxolin from a standard nozzle will be extinguished in from three to five minutes.

BRICK PLANT NAMED IN EMPLOYEES' SUIT

Over Half-Million Dollars Is Asked In Record Action Filed Against Summitville Firm

LISBON, April 17.—The largest damage suit ever recorded in the Columbiana county, listing 72 plaintiffs and asking over a half a million dollars, was filed Thursday against the Summitville Face Brick company of Summitville, Franklin township village.

The action, which demands $583,334.80, was filed by Emanuel Kaser of that village, on behalf of himself and 71 other employees of the brick concern as compensation for overtime and damages, plus attorney fees, for a period between October 24, 1938, and July 12, 1941.

The petition, filed by Atty. H. M. Rust of Mansfield, charges the labor policies of the defendant company are unfair, leading to labor disputes. The petition charges that failure to pay is a part of a conspiracy among manufacturers of brick and clay products and other labor employers acting in restraint of trade, depressing wage rates for the purpose of defeating the rights of the working people, as established by laws, through the lowering of working conditions and lengthening of hours of workers.

Kaser, a kiln burner, states he was employed at $132 per month, and that he was permitted or suffered to work over the maximum hours permitted by law and that he was not compensated for such time at one and one-half his regular rate of pay when due.

Between Oct. 24, 1938 and July 12, 1941 he worked 3,129 hours overtime, it is stated, for which there is due him $833.70, together with liquidating damages in the sum of $833.70, plus attorney fee of $2,000.

Kaser, in his petition, alleges there is due each of the 71 other workers as unpaid overtime, the sum of $1,000, together with liquidating damages of $1,000 each and attorney fees of $2,000.

REPORT PEACE MOVE IS HIT BY MUSSOLINI

LONDON, April 17.—A usually reliable source said today unconfirmed reports had been received that 30 highly placed Italians had been disciplined or rebuked by Premier Mussolini recently for attempting a movement for a separate Italian peace with Britain.

He said he was told through confidential channels that the organizers of that movement included Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, former commander of all Italian forces in North Africa; Marshal Pietro Badoglio, former chief of Premier Mussolini's air force, and Gen. Cesare Maria De Vecchi, former governor of the Dodecanese islands.

None of these was reported arrested, he said, but some civilians were said to have been held and a dozen or so government officials were reported dismissed.

Red Cross Sounds Appeal In Program To Help U. S. Fighting Men

Nurses — Mrs. F. R. Crowgey, chairman; Mrs. Arthur Brian, Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. Gus Bauman.

The national emergency demand that human blood be collected and prepared now if the lives of the soldiers and sailors are to be saved by transfusion. To meet this urgent need, the American Red Cross has been requested by the surgeons general of the army and navy to procure over 250,000 voluntary blood donors from the civilian population within the next few months.

The dried blood plasma is being sent to points of danger, distributed to troops as fast as it can be produced. A supply is to be reserved for victims of catastrophes or disasters at home. The voluntary blood donor service is the answer to this call.

LUTHERAN CHURCH IS 50 YEARS OLD

Free Special Services Are Scheduled For Sunday

It was succeeded by Rev. Ernest Smith who stayed little more than a year. The congregation first met in the homes, then in a small building, and finally the church was built to buy property on which to build a church.

During the pastorate of Rev. G. Schuch who was inducted in October, 1896, plans were vigorously pushed for the construction of a building on S. Lundy ave. Ground was broke in April, the cornerstone laid in July, and dedicatory services were held in January, 1898. During the next few years it was a difficult task to find a pastor who could remain any length of time. The congregation was incorporated under laws of the state in 1907.

Rev. E. Butts remained at his post until 1914 when Rev. A. Smith succeeded him. After the outbreak of the World war in 1914, internal dissension broke out among the various factions of these factions was a matter of being reckoned with. Many refused to attend services longer while they were being conducted in the German language. Following the war, Rev. A. Nischke took over the pastorate but died two years later because of ill health. Rev. B. E. Rutzky succeeded him and it was during his tenure that plans were made to build a new church at its present location.

Work was started in February, 1937, the cornerstone was laid in July and dedicatory services were conducted in November, 1938. Pastor Rutzky resigned to accept another call in 1933 and was then at the present minister, John Schuchman, was entrusted with the pastoral care.

During the years of depression, the congregation stood in danger of losing its church building. In 1934, however, the congregation arranged its affairs and today it has a roster of more than 600 confirmed members. Present members of the church council are: President, Rev. John Schuchman; vice president, Rudolph Linder; secretary, Lee Schaefer; assistant secretary, Matt Liebhart; treasurer, Carl C. Aber; elders, William Bodendorfer and C. O. Schaefer; trustees, George Theiss, Mike Kroner, Simon Miller, Jr., Andy Klein, and Andrew Drotleff; deacons, Mike Linder, Jr., William Jolinger, Ronald Whipple, Dwight Letz, Emil Weber, George Gottschling, Jr., Mike Linder, Sr., Andy Kikel, Emmanuel Maroscher, and fast Klein.

MOBILIZATION FOR TOTAL WAR URGED

Discipline of Everyone at Home on Financial Front Is Urged By Senator Burton

CLEVELAND, April 17. — Total war requires mobilization and discipline of everyone at home on the financial front, Senator Harold H. Burton (R-O) declared today.

"Our fight is against wasteful federal, state, local and personal expenditures," he told the National Petroleum association in semi-annual meeting here.

"Our every act of national or personal waste gives aid and comfort to our enemies. It is treason to ourselves."

Senator Burton described taxation as a "good weapon" against wasteful personal spending that boosts prices and leads to inflation, adding:

"Dictators feel that a self-governing nation is not able to discipline itself sufficiently to win a battle against inflation. However, its danger is widely understood in America. It would mean the loss of individual savings represented by government bonds and insurance policies and destroy the value of fixed salaries and wages of America. To combat this situation, the price control bill was enacted. One of the greatest contributions we can make to winning the war is, as individuals, business concerns and as a government, to cooperate with instead of seeking to evade price controls."

U. S. CALLS LEAHY FROM VICHY POST

Present Vichy Government Resigns As Laval Takes Over

It was made clear by an authoritative source yesterday that no attempt would be made to maintain diplomatic relations with the collaborationist Laval government.

Await U. S. Decision
LONDON, April 17.—The United States' reaction to Pierre Laval's rise to power in Vichy may be the test of France's future, a French spokesman declared today.

"The French people," he declared, "are waiting for the United States' stand and, by it, will make their own decisions."

"If Laval were placed in the same category as other Quislings and branded by the United States as a tool of Berlin, the French people would be forced to take a stand either with Germany or the United States—and there is little doubt what their decision would be."

One of Laval's first acts, this source predicted, will be to send French warships into the Mediterranean and Atlantic to try to provoke an incident with British naval forces in order to drive France into the war on the Nazi side because he "would not dare to hand over the French fleet to Hitler outright.... the people would not stand for it."

MATA HARI'S Daughter

By MAURICE DEKOBRA and LEYLA GEORGIE

CHAPTER SIXTEEN ...

The spy's pointed weapon jerked upward, as if pulled by strings. A bullet slugged its way harmlessly into the ceiling. The bulky enemy agent collapsed grotesquely, his legs going under him before he pitched forward and lay still.

Dick's big, angular frame appeared out of the lightning dawn. "Hello, there," he called cheerily. "You bent over the dead man for an instant. Too bad. I'd rather have seen him alive. Couldn't chance it, though, under the circumstances. A mean customer!"

Brinda scarcely knew what Dick Malden said, she was so happy to see him alive.

"Dick!" she cried. "Oh, Dick!"

Then, somehow, she was in his arms.

The Squire coughed. "Someone was warned."

"It was the constable. He approached cautiously."

"Oh!" he said, on viewing the way, "you got another?"

"Where's your prisoner?" asked Dick sharply.

"I was 'oping you'd seen 'im," said the constable. "E got away."

With his good hand, Sir John angrily crumpled the report he had just finished reading. Against Dr. MacDonald's advice, he had returned to London on hearing of Brinda's adventure. A loose sling supported his injured arm, and his face was white with fatigue. But he sat bolt upright at the desk in his study, spurning even the support of the chair-arm.

He addressed his orderly Hunt, hovering nearby. "Tell my niece I wish to see her—at once."

During the brief wait, the Intelligence Chief painfully extracted a legal-looking document from a drawer, took up a pen, and began to write. He had just laid the pen down when Brinda arrived.

"Sandy! What on earth are you doing here? Why aren't you in bed? Sir John applied a blotter to what he had just written.

For an excellent reason, my child. I enjoy depriving MacDonald of the chance to cope me with his confounded potions. Then, I had something important to attend to—something I'm afraid you may not like." He handed her the document.

Brinda looked at it uncomprehendingly for a moment or two; then she exclaimed, "Why, it's a passport!"

"Exactly," said Sir John. "Also, your visas—one for Portugal, one for the United States."

"But—" Brinda strove to keep the tremor out of her voice—"I don't understand. Honestly, Sandy, why?"

Sir John's lean jaws tightened. "Sit down. Of course, you don't understand. I'll explain."

In short, curt sentences, he told her. It was not his intention to reach her. But she seemed to have a knack for getting into highly dangerous and delicate situations. First, her fatal mistake of giving a lift to the parachutist; then, Kenley's murder. Finally, the exciting series of events that had begun on the Mountwyn terrace and ended so dramatically at the lonely whom her father, before his death, had spoken so seldom, and whom Sir John, for some reason, never mentioned.

The cabinet, of intricately carved teak, was lined with some other Oriental wood golden and scented with a strange, exotic perfume. This fragrance emanated especially from a drawer in the bottom, in which Brinda kept her special treasures. She could never quite be sure whether the essence came from the wood or from being impregnated, at some time in the past, by a powerful and arresting feminine perfume. Somehow, she thought it was the latter, because the fragrance was connected in her mind with that dim shadowy memory of the mother she had never consciously known.

It was a secret drawer, and opened by pressing one of the scrolls in the teakwood. She opened it now, and drew forth a necklace of several rows of thin, iridescent pearls.

She tested the pearls against the smoky pallor of her throat, and was satisfied. At the same time, she had a peculiar sense of there being a third person in the room—someone trying to speak to her across a vast, mysterious gulf. An icy chill ran through her; yet she was not frightened. For it was not a new experience. More than once before, on opening the secret drawer, she had felt the same eerie sensation. Once, at an official dinner, she had been seated next to a famous man—an Englishman—who had made a profound study of East Indian mysticism. She had told him, half in fun, of the jewel cabinet, and its curious effect on her. But he had not laughed.

Instead, he had asked: "Tell me, had your mother lived long in the East?"

And to Brinda's affirmative reply, he had said, gravely, "I am not surprised. The dead in the East have their own way of speaking to those they love."

Brinda could hear his voice now, as she linked the clasp of the necklace and prepared to shut the secret drawer again. It seemed to her, too, she could hear another voice, thin and silvery, trying to tell her something. She felt as though someone were warning her of grave, impending danger.

night, and now it was too late. The secret was out, the plotters dead. Again, he had missed a clue that almost surely would have led him to Ajax—all because of Brinda's curiosity and Dick Malden's impetuous, if effective, action.

He lifted the phone that communicated with the Intelligence Offices.

"Sanderson speaking. Find out when a good neutral coat is leaving for Lisbon. Engage a passage on it for my ward, Miss Brinda Duncan. One way."

With a sigh, he turned back to the mass of paper on his desk.

At the same moment, Brinda was also talking over the housekeeping phone.

"Dick," she said, "I must see you. It's terribly important!"

"Right-o," came Dick's voice reassuringly over the wire. "In a jiffy.... And how about a bite and a cocktail?"

"That would be lovely."

"Good! I'll be over for you in no time."

It was so arranged.

In her room, Brinda dressed swiftly, completing her costume with a curiously carved jade necklace a gift from Sir John when she was graduated from Miss Cartwright's.... But its color clashed with her costume, and removing it, she turned to a jewel cabinet that was among her few authentic personal possessions.

The cabinet was connected with a forgotten presence—a misty, vague figure from her earliest childhood.... The mother of whom she knew so little.... The mother of Why his sudden rage at the name of Mata Hari, the famous woman spy? His irate reaction seemed fantastic and irrational. She had the sense of treading on the edge of some fateful mystery, of being threatened by forces that she could not understand.

She barely heard her guardian as he finished. "Sorry that all this is necessary.... But you'll be better off.... Too dangerous.... As I told you repeatedly, I can't have you getting mixed up in espionage...."

She was thinking desperately how she could avoid leaving England—and Dick.

At the door, she paused. She wanted to ask Sir John why he had told her she was in danger at the Mountwyns.

And then Brinda recalled the conversation she had overheard in the house on the moor, the plan by which the stolen list of British agents was to be smuggled to Germany. But hurt pride and bewilderment choked back the words.

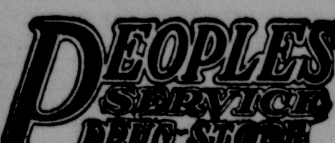

"I think you're making a big mistake, Sandy," she managed to say. "I could help. I am sure—"

"You're helped quite enough," responded Sir John dryly.

As the door closed, he again scanned the report that had aroused his anger. Dated the previous day, it gave the location of the spy headquarters on the moor. Through the stupidity of a clerk, it had failed to reach him the previous

Boudreau Selects Veteran Mel Harder To Pitch Home Opener

INDIANS FACE TED LYONS, WHITE SOX IN '42 HOME DEBUT

Heath Smashes Homer In 6-4 Loss To Detroit; Pitching Weak

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Opening the season for local baseball fans today, the Cleveland Indians came home with a 333 standing to face veteran Ted Lyons and the Chicago White Sox.

Boy-manager Lou Boudreau called on veteran hurler, Mel Harder, who underwent an elbow operation last fall and then won a contract with the Tribe during spring training.

Among the pre-game ceremonies scheduled in the stadium today were the induction of 50 men into the navy a parade to the center-field flag pole with a color guard of four sailors, four soldiers and four marines, and a sizzling pitch by Mayor Frank J. Lausche at 4 p. m.

Detroit won yesterday's tussle on Don Ross' homer in the eighth, the third circuit clout of a see-saw scoring day.

Heath opened the seventh with a home run which tied the game at 4-4. He picked out to the wooden facing of the third tier in right field, very near the spot Ted Williams chose last year when he broke up the All-Star game.

Ross, second man up in the eighth, lined one to the left field seats, and gave Detroit the game, 5 to 4.

Rudy York also homered for the Tigers in the fifth.

Salem Tennis Squad Tops East In Debut

The Salem High tennis squad opened its season with a bang yesterday as they pounded out a 7-0 win over the Youngstown East team in a Mahoning Valley league match at the Volney Rodgers courts in Youngstown.

Carl Capel, the Quakers' ace netter, defeated Thompson 6-1, 6-1; Phil Cozad came through over Barokak with a 6-3, 6-1 triumph; Bob Ruffing trimmed Balestia, 6-0, 7-5; Wayne Laughlin spilled Pessa, 6-0, 6-0; and Bob Moore stopped Eisenstat, 6-1, 6-1, in the singles.

In the doubles Capel and Cozad teamed to trounce Thompson and Hovanec, 6-1, 6-0 while Laughlin and Ruffing combined to trip Barokak and Balestia, 6-1, 6-0.

Next Thursday the Quakers will meet Youngstown Chanev in another Mahoning Valley league match.

LANDIS MEETS WITH MOGULS, OFFICERS

NEW YORK, April 17.—A united, all-out war effort was baseball's goal today as Commissioner Kene-saw M. Landis, the shaggy, white-haired czar of the national pastime, gathered the leaders of the sport in a hotel room here to confer with army and navy officers on a program that would extend from the major leagues down to the smallest minors.

"We want to get the minors in on this, we want to work out something everybody can help on," Landis said yesterday as he disclosed that he had asked William G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, and Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International league and a member of the executive league committee of the National association, to attend today's session.

Presidents Ford Frick of the National league and William Harbridge of the American league have been conferring for two days with the 75-year-old commissioner, and yesterday this triumvirate was joined by two representatives of the army and navy.

But after an hour's discussion Landis recessed the session in order to bring Shaughnessy and Bramham into the conference and place the whole program on a plane of all baseball instead of just a major league effort.

Up till now individual clubs and the various leagues have formulated their own war programs.

COLUMBUS, TOLEDO Win A. A. OPENERS

The home teams were especially good hosts as the American association began its 41st baseball season yesterday, so good that the only one with anything left to show for opening day was Milwaukee, which drew the top crowd of the day, but didn't get to play out its game.

The other clubs got a break from the weather, but saw success end there. It was the visiting team in each instance that won.

Indianapolis lost, 13 to 2, to the champion Columbus Red Birds, who are being picked to repeat this year. Kansas City made the most of six hits, but finally yielded to Minneapolis, 3 to 2. Louisville failed to hit in the pinches and lost to Toledo, 4 to 1.

At Milwaukee, weather interfered after one inning of play, but George Trautman, association president, said the attendance figure—15,599—would count as Milwaukee's official opening day crowd. Indianapolis drew 12,247. Kansas City 11,218 and Louisville 9,105. Trautman said the league total, which bettered 47,000, was the best in a decade.

BOWLING NEWS

The league leading Machinists of the Electric Furnace took a firmer grip on first place as they shut out the Shippers last night on the Masonic alleys while the Purchasers dropped one game of their match with the Transformers. Electrical stuck to the pace as they copped a pair from Structural. Structural also lost three to Night Shift A.

All games in the Commercial league were postponed. In a special match between two teams from the Mullins league at the Grate alleys the Army mules met the Shell shocks and were defeated twice. Lopenan's 202 was the highest score registered in the series.

WRIGHT FARM AIMS FOR DERBY DOUBLE WITH "SUN AGAIN"

Burgoo King-Broker's Tip Last Double; Calumet Horse Rated Highly

(By Associated Press) LEXINGTON, Ky.,—Out of Keeneland, where more than two dozen Kentucky Derby candidates are on display these days, they have concluded there's one sure thing about the big race this year — Warren Wright's Calumet farm really is trying for a repeat.

And the boys add, with Sun Again as Calumet's leading hopeful and Canny Ben Jones at the controls, it will might happen.

If Wright makes it two in a row with Whirlaway last year and Sun Again this year, it will be the first double since Col. E. R. Bradley scored in 1932 with Burgoo King and in 1933 with Broker's Tip.

Speculation on Sun Again's chances went soaring yesterday when he led mighty Whirlaway himself, as well as two other derby nominees, to the finish in Keeneland's $1,500 Sesquicentennial handicap.

The chestnut son of Sun Teddy-Hug Again, with Wendell Eads up and out in front all the way in the six furlong event and managed to hold off his famous stablemate in one of Whirl's famous stretch drives. Whirlaway ended up second, while Bliss Me, Bradley's only Derby hope this year, came in fourth and Paul Espinosa's Derby colt, Counterbalance, finished far back in the field.

It was the second outing for both Wright horses at Keeneland. Last week Whirlaway, 1941 Derby winner, was second to the Greenree stable's Devil Diver, with Sun Again close to his heels.

Experts say that over the longer distance Whirlaway probably would have shown his younger rivals a thing or two, but they also are in accord on Sun Again's being a completely adequate successor to the stable's 1941 champion as its Derby candidate.

Anyway, it's as sure as anything about the Derby can be at this point that Sun Again is going to get sent for a gold cup—a cup just like Whirlaway brought home from Churchill Downs last year.

Bob Pastor Chances Title Bout Tonight

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Tricky Bob Pastor, who hopes for another try at Joe Louis this summer, and Sluggin' Jimmy Bivins, leading light heavyweight challenger, will be gunning for a knockout in their 10-round scrap tonight.

Pastor is expected to step into the ring with about a five-pound weight advantage over his Cleveland Negro opponent, whose best ring weight has been a shade under 175 pounds. Winner of 11 straight contests, Bob is the favorite at 2 to 1. But Bivins packs enough kayo T. N. T. in his fists to upset many a wager.

Collegiate Robert's record looks the better on the evidence of his last showing here, when he deposited Lem Franklin and his heavyweight title hopes on the canvas in eight rounds.

Franklin put a knockout punch on Bivins but except for that, the hard-hitting Bivins record looks good, too.

If Pastor should lose, he would be eliminated from his No. 1 position for a crack at Joe Louis this summer. Bob gets a major share of an estimated $50,000 receipts, however.

The ten-round semi-final pairs Anton Christoforidis, former light-heavy champ, and Jimmy Reeves, Cleveland's former international A. A. U. middleweight champion.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, April 17.—After every inning, Ted Williams visits the score board at Fenway park to ask the keeper if anybody around the circuit hit any homers. Looks as if Georgia might be retrenching its athletic program on the quiet. The Bulldogs have cancelled all dual track meets incidentally leaving Auburn without a home meet for the first time in 26 years) and plan to enter only two men in the Southeastern conference meet. . . . The turf committee of America, announcing that a goal of $2,000,000 has been set for racing's contribution to war relief, points out that this is to be "apart from such gifts as the public may choose to make, channeling through face organizations." . . . Presumably, then, that rules out the Narragansett idea of running an extra race and contributing what the public donates that way.

Today's Guest Star

Bill Shirley, Little Rock, Arkansas Democrat: "Prospects at Memphis are so gloomy that Doc Prothro thinks he's still piloting the Phillies. The ex-doctor of dentistry will have to 'fill' plenty of weak spots and 'pull' a few surprises if he expects his chicks to crash the Southern loop's first division."

Odd-And-Some Ends

Robert Trent, noted golf course architect, has turned his talents to designing army airports. . . . He's doing away with hazards instead of creating them. . . . Although the national A. A. U. boxing championships at Boston had the smallest entry list in years, the first night's gate was $4,938.25, a few hundred dollars more than in 1941. . . . Al Sabath reports that Alabab hit on 80 pounds "in the right places" since he ran in Florida and acts more like the eager-to-run colt of last summer.

Bits of Sport

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Chief Boatman's mate Robert Feller, star pitcher for the Norfolk naval training station's baseball team, will be a spectator Saturday and Sunday when the Cleveland Indians play the White Sox in the stadium.

Feller will be in town to speak at an athletic banquet Saturday night. He formerly pitched for the Cleveland club.

CLEVELAND—The Cleveland Indians have signed Willis E. Butler of Richmond, Calif., to scout the northern half of the Pacific coast territory. As a scout for the St. Louis Browns, Butler turned up such major leaguers as Red Kress, Jack Knet and Harland Clift.

PITTSBURGH—William Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh baseball club, announced the indefinite suspension of two Pirate players, Catcher Eddie Hernandez and Infielder Lee Handley.

Hernandez was suspended for failure to report to Toronto after being optioned to the International league club and Handley was suspended for failing to be in playing condition at the opening of the season.

Another headpin tournament, starting Saturday afternoon and continuing through Saturday, May 2, on the Masonic alleys, was announced today by Manager Joe Reese.

Three games of 12 frames each will constitute a series and entrants may bowl any Saturday or any other night when he can find alleys open.

At least five cash prizes will be offered. The prize list may be increased, according to the number who enter the tournament.

Red Sox Club A's, 19-4, As Williams, DiMaggio Homer; Brownies Humiliate Chisox

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Fantastic things happen during the first few days of every baseball season when the major league clubs are trying to shake out their spring kinks.

Take a day like yesterday. The Boston Red Sox scored 19 runs for what may stand all season as the largest score by one club. The victims were the Philadelphia Athletics, who scored four runs just for exercise, certainly not for competition.

The Red Soxers, who had ripped out 24 hits in their first two games with the A's made 21 yesterday and tallied in every turn at bat except the second inning. Ted Williams hit his second home run of the season and Dominic DiMaggio posted one.

It would be easy to compose an essay on the bright future promised Boston by this slugging except for the fact that it was accomplished against nondescript pitching. Old Connie Mack started a young fellow named Fred Calliguri, who pitched in a Class "C" league last year. After the Red Sox scored five runs in four innings, Mr. Mack sent out Lester McCrabb and when he couldn't stop the raid, the old gentleman simply refused to waste any more pitchers trying to keep down the score.

There were other wild games—in fact five of the day's eight encounters produced from 22 to 28 hits—but some extraordinary recognition ought to go to the 12-inning struggle which Cincinnati captured 8-7 from Pittsburgh to knock the Pirates out of their share of the National league lead.
